SAD SCENE ON ISLE.

TRAGIC SEQUEL TO WAR ROMANCE ON SAKHALIN.

Physician Long Separated from Wife Goes to Island to Rejoin Her Only to Find That She Has Been Smuggled Away.

LONDON.—A romantic incident and its tragic sequel are told in connection with the capture of Sakhalin by the Japanese. The first thing they did was to liberate the Russian political prisoners who were on the island. A Russian, now in London, when interviewed, said that as far as was known there were about a dozen such prisoners, together with a number of roles.

"The saddest case," he says, "was, perhaps, Mme. Walckenstein, the young wife of a doctor who was concerned in the political movement of 1879-80, called the 'People's Will.' Seized one night by the police, she disappeared into the gloomy jaws of the Schlusselburg, that dread fortress on the Neva. Once inside all trace was lost by the friends of the prisoner. No inquiry of the heartbroken relatives was answered.

"The young husband's frantic appeals for news of his wife were scorned. Stiffing his impatience as best he might, the young doctor waited for a year, for once a year the rules of the Schlusselburg permitted the prisoner to write one open letter. The letter never came. The privilege had been withdrawn by the governor for some trivial offense. Try as they might to keep the rules, there was always something that allowed the jailers to report prisoners for insubordination, and so preserve the silence of death that enveloped the island fortress. But we have means of getting intelligence and every few years we learned who had been executed or died, and who still dragged out the frightful existence in the cells of silence of that ghastly prison. Twenty years passed.

"In 1900 we heard that Mme. Walckenstein, Tregoni, Purofski, Jabaloff, and about eight others were being sent to Sakhalin for the rest of their lives, if life it could be called, each one suffering from incurable illness caused by the miasmas of the Schlusselburg. Dr. Walckenstein journeyed across that dreary waste, thousands of miles on roads ill made—there was no railway then—and saw his wife, the wife he had loved all these years. What a meeting—young and beautiful when they parted—gray, middle-aged and wrecked with disease when they met—a meeting of tears.

"The husband, believing his wife to be free and that he could take her to some part of the world where Russia's tyranny does not reach, journeyed again to Sakhalin, only to find that just before the investment of the island by the Japanese his wife was removed to Vladivostok. The poor woman was smuggled out of the island by means of a Japanese coasting vessel, and is being kept in prison at Vladivostok, where the military authorities will not allow any noncombatants, and her devoted husband may not ever see her. By strange misfortune she was the only prisoner sent away, all the others being left on the island."

NO SHOES AND NO CHURCH

Women Release Cobbler So as to Attend Sunday Services—Hand Over Necessary Cash.

PATERSON, N. J.—Gaetano Tiscio, a shoe cobbler, owes his release from jail to angry women who gathered in front of his shop, eager for the return of shoes they had left for repair. Without the shoes they could not attend church. What had become of the cobbler was finally answered by Felecia d'Angelo, who appeared among the women and assured them that the cobbler was in jail, d'Angelo explained, for stealing coal from him valued at $1.50.

"I'll tell you what," suggested d'Angelo. "If you people pay me for the coal stolen, I will go before the justice and withdraw the complaint." The women gladly agreed to this, and soon $1.50 in dimes and nickels was turned over to d'Angelo.

d'Angelo explained the situation, and Tiscio was released. The women in paying their shoe bills withheld the amount subscribed for the release of the cobbler.

New Use for Forfeited Life.

The London Lancet publishes a suggestion from a medical correspondent that condemned murderers should have the option of submitting themselves to some simple pathological experiment as the alternative of being hanged. The writer urges that a life which is forfeited by the state should be used to some good end instead of wasted. "If we could study disease in the laboratory of the human body we might with confidence look forward to almost endless possibilities."

The Oregon Out of Date.

Think of the fine battleship Oregon, whose run from ocean to ocean seems but an achievement of yesterday, being spoken of as "antiquated"—as needing to be rebuilt if she is to be of further service to the country! Is it enough to make the untechnical layman ask himself whether all the expense and all the tourings in the seven seas are worth while.

True, Too True.

A Pittsburg man who is the father of 14 boys had adopted a little girl. This case would seem to upset the theory that hope springs eternal in the human breast.

IS SECOND RIP VAN WINKLE

Lexington (Ky.) Man, Thought Dead, After Twenty-One Years Returns Home.

Lexington, Ky.—A second Rip Van Winkle was resurrected when Sam Snyder returned home after a mysterious absence of 21 years.

Snyder is the stepfather of Sanford Lyne, the well-known turfman and the father of Lucien Lyne. He was a prosperous jeweler of Lawrenceburg, and came to Lexington about a quarter of a century ago. Here he met and married the widowed mother of Sanford Lyne. Three months after his marriage he went to Louisville with Mrs. Snyder on a visit and there deserted her. His disappearance was complete. Mrs. Snyder was convinced that he had either become suddenly insane or had met with foul play, and advertised extensively for information as to his whereabouts, sending circulars to every police department in the country.

A few days after his disappearance his clothes were found on the bank of a creek in Indiana. His son, Otis Snyder, offered a large reward for the recovery of the body, but nothing more was heard of him until his return recently.

He comes back to Lexington a white bearded, wrinkled man of 75 years, and would never have been recognized by his old acquaintances. It is said that an effort was made to collect the money on his life insurance policies, but that the companies refused to pay without proof of his death. Mrs. Snyder died about eight years ago, believing that she was his widow.

HOODOOED BY NUMBER 13

Academy at Warren, Ill., Attributes Its Poor Luck to Odd Circumstances.

Warren, Ill.—Various reasons are assigned for Warren academy closing, but the best one up to date is the fact that the institution was hoodooed by the unlucky number "13," which occurs 13 times to sound the death knell.

On the 13th day of September, in the thirteenth year of its existence, the school closed, with just 13 students present.

In the name Warren academy there are 13 letters, the title page of the thirteenth catalogue has 13 lines of printing on it. On page 13 are announced the rates of tuition, the lack of which brought death. The subject matter of the catalogue ends 13 pages from the end and three times 13 is due the printer for issuing the book. It will likely be 13 years before he gets it.

In 1905 13 were regularly graduated. There are 13 rooms in the building, which originally cost $13,000, and besides the president and secretary there are 13 trustees. This season's "lecture course," containing 13 letters, was announced and died. On page 3, in line 13, of the catalogue appears "Memorial day," which is very appropriate at this time.

RESIGNS AFTER 35 YEARS.

Pastor Completes Lifetime of Service in One Church—To Devote Time to Missions.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Rev. Dr. S. J. Fisher surprised his congregation at the morning service of the Swissvale Presbyterian church by reading his resignation, which he desires to take effect November 10, the thirty-fifth anniversary of his pastorate. In giving his reasons, Dr. Fisher said: "I feel that while the church is harmonious and the conditions are good it is wise in me to resign. I have been in the one field 35 years, and I wish to direct my energies in another way. The board of missions to the Freedmen will receive more of my time and energies."

Dr. Fisher, immediately after graduating from the seminary, took charge of the Swissvale church, which had just been started and had 13 members. Of the original members there are left one elder and two other members. The congregation has been in the one building all the time, but it has been enlarged on several occasions to keep pace with the growth of the congregation. There are at present about 300 members.

DIGS WELL; FINDS FORTUNE

Poor Man Strikes $100,000 Treasure in Search for Water on Colorado Farm.

Denver, Col.—From Lamar, Col., comes the remarkable story of a $100,000 treasure being unearthed by a poor family while digging a well in their back yard. The name of the finder is unknown, but the story is vouched for in a letter by Mrs. M. S. Downer, of Lamar, to her son, E. F. Downer, a young business man of Colorado Springs.

Mrs. Downer says the find was made several days ago. A man was digging a well and had gone down but four feet when he unearthed a box containing gold estimated to be worth $100,000.

There is considerable mystery regarding the find, and the supposition is that the treasure was buried in the early days, possibly by Indians. Mrs. Downer does not go into details in the letter, but says there is great excitement in Lamar over the discovery. It is understood that the finder of the fortune is a laboring man and that his wife also works hard for a living.

Catches Man-Eating Shark.

A big man-eating shark was brought to shore at Cos Cob, Conn., recently by Judge George W. Brush. It was towed behind his catboat. The shark was nine feet long and had a double row of teeth. It weighed 400 pounds.
